

Hipsburn Primary whole school Story.

The Great Hipsburn Space Adventure

Etal Class

There had never been so much excitement at Hipsburn Primary school...

For weeks there had been a competition going on. Excitement was growing as the final competition designs for the rocket were collected from each classroom. Every child had the opportunity to design a rocket that would take Hipsburn children into space, the winner of the best design would take their place in the rocket and join the runners up on a great space adventure.

Later that day, Mr Moloney announced, through his loudspeaker, that the winners had been chosen and that everyone was to assemble in the school hall.

The anticipation of the results could be felt throughout the school, children waited; feeling anxious, excited, nervous and hopeful.

The results were in, Mr Moloney read out the runners up first. "Farrah, Parker, Zorba, Henry, Arthur and Alexandra, and the winner of the best rocket design is...Kate, very well done all of you."

The design had already been sent to the rocket manufacturer and had been delivered onto the school playground that morning.

It was time for the children to pack their bags for the journey, but who would be going with the children, how would they choose a member of staff?

It was decided that the children, who would be staying behind, would choose who they would like to accompany the winners on their journey, it would be tricky but it had to be done.

All the teacher's names were put into a hat. It was very tense as the draw began. Alice drew a name out first, "Miss Barron!" The whole school erupted into applause. Link was next, "Mrs Dexter!" The children clapped, and the last name was drawn by Reubens, " Mrs O'Reilly!" The children roared with delight.

Two weeks later, everything was ready. The local newspapers and the local TV company were gathered in the playground waiting to record every second of the rocket's departure. The whole school was waiting for the final countdown. Mr Moloney, again with his loudspeaker, began the countdown.

"Good luck everyone and safe journey. 5 - 4 - 3 - 2 - 1 - Blast off."

Kate and the adults looked at each other excitedly. Jillian started to shake, she was no longer feeling as excited and the thought of leaving earth was making her nervous. Before they could even think about anything, the red, shiny rocket was rumbling and hurtling into the starry sky. All of a sudden, the rocket malfunctioned and the crew were sent bouncing off all of the different planets. Just before the rocket came to a stop, the ship started to violently shake and the crew were plunged into darkness...

2 years went by.

Suddenly, the broken ship was rammed into by a new, massive rocket ship and the crew finally woke up from their deep sleep. Kate opened one eye and saw multiple streaks of colour, she could see some strange creatures. As Kate sat up, she saw a rainbow coloured fluffy alien with one eye, hugging Jillian tightly. Jillian shrieked with fear. "We are the mechanics of the sky and we are here to fix your rocket ship!" squeakily shouted the multi-coloured monster. Another brightly coloured monster stood up and declared "We found this little guy on our way!" As he mentioned this, he dangled a miniscule micro pig that had somehow got lost in space.

The majestic mechanics held out their hands and magically summoned all the tools they needed to fix this ship. It took the mechanics 3 years to fix the ship! Kate was now 13 years old and she was pretty bored of life in space. Miss Barron tried to cheer Kate up by telling her that she was now a teenager. It didn't work. "Oh no, I have missed my first day of high school!" yelled Kate. Kate was even more distraught. The rainbow aliens felt sorry for Kate so they gifted her the micro pig that they found in the depths of space. Kate was so grateful and finally felt hopeful.

Now that the ruby, red rocket was fixed, the crew happily took their places in the ship and began to zoom back to school. The crew had set up a room in the back of the rocket for the aliens to fly with them. However, as they looked back at the planet, none of the aliens had travelled with them.

CRASH!

BASH!

BOOM!

THUMP!

Someone or maybe it was a something was in the back room of the spaceship. Kate peered through the tiny back window and into the back room. She stood astonished as she saw a gigantic handprint on the wall, accompanied by a microscopic handprint...

Suddenly a green and pink creature appeared at the window. Kate had never seen a creature like it! She counted 2 legs, 5 eyes and 10 arms! To her amazement, the space creature was dancing, she couldn't believe how amazing it wiggled and jiggled all 10 arms whilst it spun around. Kate was even more surprised by the size of alien...it was a giant. Jillian looked over Kate's shoulder and said with surprise, "wow, it's even bigger than Hipsburn Primary School!". The alien must have heard her and it hurried to the window. Kate jumped with fright and quickly ran away but the alien used one of it's hands (the microscopic one) to squeeze through the window and grab Jillian. It then leapt off, breaking out of the rocket and flying to a hot, green planet with poisonous spikes. It locked her in a cage. Jillian was worried, she was scared...

Then she heard a 'bleep, bloop'. She looked around and spotted a green pipe had burst through the ground. Out of the pipe shot a small, red man. He had red overalls, a red cap and black moustache. It was Mario! He pulled a mushroom out of his pocket and ate it. Before Jillian could ask what he was doing, he started to grow. He grew 104 times bigger and smashed the cage with a big crash!

Mario and Jillian quickly jumped back down the pipe, they slid down a massive slide until they reached planet Earth. Jillian made her way back to school to tell Mr Moloney about their terrifying adventure.

Mario, quick as a flash, went back up the slide and into the pipe to the poisonous spiky planet where he took an enormous leap into outer space. He leapt so hard that he missed the planet and landed on the rocket with a BANG!

Kate was petrified, Miss Barron was terrified and Mrs O'Reilly shook her head in dismay. Would they ever get home again! They all rushed to find a safe place to hide.

Mario entered the rocket and searched until he found them all. He gave them a mystery box. Kate cautiously and carefully opened the box. Inside there was a golden key, all of a sudden, the key began to glow!

The rainbow-coloured vortex opened and sucked them back to earth. The vortex spun and spun until they landed back at Hipsburn Primary School.

Kate, on her return, was so experienced with outer space she joined the NASA spacecraft team to be a full-time astronaut and was far too busy to go to High School. Miss Barron was quite exhausted and was given permission to have an extra-long holiday. Mrs O'Reilly decided she had had quite enough exploring, so she decided it would be safer to pick a good book and have a rest.

Mr Moloney meanwhile decided that it would probably be best if there were no more rocket building competitions. However, unbeknown to him, the school council had voted on their next project. 'TIME TRAVEL!' here we come...
